

L.D. KING RETIRES FROM POST OFFICE

A recent change was made in the personnel of the local postoffice when L.D. King, Postmaster of the Raymond office since 1912 resigned. He was succeeded by L.L. Palmer, who has acted as assistant postmaster these past 19 years. When interviewed this week Les admits having a hard time remembering to sign his name in the proper space as he has been signing Mr. King's name for so long.

The post office has been handicapped the past while as mail is being brought in by truck and poor roads held up that service for a time.

The government is taking over more than 10,000 post offices throughout the country and making them part of the civil service. As a result there will be new offices built as material becomes available. We hope Raymond will be in line for such a new structure.

Old Timer Celebrates 80th Birthday

Mr. George Shields, a resident of the Stirling and Raymond district since 1899, celebrated his 80th birthday recently at the home of his daughter Mrs. John Housley, where he is making his home. Mr. Shields came to Stirling from South Jordan, Utah, in 1899, worked on the C.P.R. irrigation system between Magrath and Stirling and then moved to Raymond in 1904 where he farmed for the following 40 years. He has five living children, Mrs. George Housley of Consul, Sask., Mrs. John Housley of Raymond, and Carl of Trill, Merfin of Diamond City and Roy of Raymond. His progeny includes 22 grandchildren and 24 great grandchildren. The elderly gentleman is still very active and takes care of such chores as caring for the cow and chickens at the home of his daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Oler had as their Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Oler, of Picture Butte.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Eaves on the birth of a baby boy, April 28th.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Sell and children of Rosemary are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Barton.

A well prepared program was presented on Sunday evening by the officers and children of the Primary Association, the occasion being the Regular Primary ward conference. The stage was nicely decorated with a colorful rainbow and the program numbers showed much work and planning had been given to it. The officers should be complimented on their effort.

Members of the Hi School Dramatics group motored to Raymond on Monday night and were guests of the management of the Capital Theatre at a theatre party where they all enjoyed the show, "Miracle on 34th Street."

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brandley have had as their house guest for the past week, Mrs. Ann Ostlund of Medicine Hat.

Mrs. Ellen Nelson was hostess to a number of friends at Kensington on Thursday afternoon. A lovely lunch was the highlight of the afternoon.

Bee Hive Week Over

Swarm week for the Bee Hive Girls of the Taylor Stake concluded last Friday evening when mothers and fathers and anyone interested in Bee Hive work were invited to attend the exercises. Mrs. Laila Dahl, one of the Taylor Stake Bee Keepers was in charge and gave a short talk on the Purpose of Bee Hive Work and welcomed all. Each ward participated in the fine program after which Mrs. Dahl announced the queen chosen.

This year 40 girls out of 42 were honor bees, the largest number ever known in the Taylor Stake. These girls were all presented by their Beekeepers and presented with their diplomas and gift. Two teachers, Hilda Larson and Viola Blackmore also received diplomas.

Many lovely pictures were taken of the group and lunch served after to everyone. Bee Hive motifs and colors were used in decorating the large Bee Hive forming the background of the stage. Over one hundred Bee Hive Girls and Bee Keepers were in attendance in uniform.

Everyone attending was presented with small corsage of pussy willows and lovely displays of the girls work was shown.

At a nicely arranged afternoon party, Mrs. Earl Nelson entertained a group of friends complimentary to Mrs. Leola Pengilly, who is visiting here from Abbotsford, B.C. The afternoon was pleasantly spent and a delicious lunch was served.

At the recent Stake Bee Hive Swarm Day Program held in the Raymond on Friday, April 30th, Mrs. Margaret Perrett was chosen queen of the local Bee Hive Group. This is considered a great honor by the girls as they are chosen on merit, based on their yearly Bee Hive Record, as well as their Scrap Books. An honor which every 3rd year girl looks forward to.

SPRING WEDDING SOLEMNIZED

First Day Music Festival

The first day of the musical Festival at Lethbridge the Raymond contestants have returned home with a commendable number of placings.

Kay Salmon came first in division one, Miss Carol Dahl placed second in division one, girls solo; Laila Woolley came first in division one, boys solo; Patricia Strong placed second in division three, girls solo; Misses Arlene Taylor and Margaret Stone won first in Public School Duet, Misses Geraldine Court and Anita McIbride took first place and Misses Betty Jo McLean and Ruth Graham placed second in High School duet; the public school mixed choruses with 46 voices took first place as there was no competition. Their criticism was very good however. These numbers were all under the direction of Mrs. Kay H. Redd and they showed the long hours of training which were put in. A complete list of Festival standings of Raymond entries will be given next week.

Ladies Literary Meet

The Ladies Literary held its monthly meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Paul Redd with Mrs. Redd and Mrs. W. C. Stone acting as hostesses. The usual book review was given by "Annie Lorie" Taylor. This was Lloyd C. Douglas' "White Banners" and Mrs. Taylor gave it all the understanding treatment which only she can give. After the delicious lunch it was decided that all of the women wished to do something for a member, Mrs. Bert Kirkham who is seriously ill. The plan which was finally agreed upon was that each member be given one day on which to do her kindness, as there are twenty four members this will be a much greater comfort to the sick woman than one big day of attention.

The many lovely gifts were in charge of the Misses Gene Garner Joyce Phillips and Lois Fairbanks. Mrs. LaPrell McNeely took charge of the guest book.

For the short program which was presented Melvin T. King acted as Master of Ceremonies and was as follows: The Brides Prayer, by Elizabeth Brandley, vocal solo by Vonda Smith; vocal trio, Gen Hawkins, Evelyn Melchin and Laura Watson; accompanied by Mrs. Emma Dahl, piano duet, Jeanette Henniger and Ethel Wilson; piano solo Herbert Bishop; comic reading Mrs. Geneva Erickson.

After the brides waltz, the newly weds left for a honeymoon in Great Falls, the bride changing to a beige suit with brown topcoat and brown accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will take up residence in Raymond.

Relatives and friends attended from many points in southern Alberta among whom were Mr. and Mrs. George Stringham, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Stringham, Mrs. John Pratt of Lethbridge, Mrs. Joe Snow and Mrs. Doreen Brumpton, Milk Milk River, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Stringham and Mrs. Lila Snow, Cardston, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gottenberg Chumpton.

A very pretty spring wedding took place here Monday evening, May 3rd when Bishop J. Golden Snow united in marriage Vesta, youngest daughter of Mrs. Myrtle Williams, and the late Sylvester Williams and Frank G. Anderson of Raymond. The ceremony was performed in the beautifully decorated Relief Society room of the Stake House in the presence of immediate relatives.

A reception was held immediately after which nearly three hundred relatives and friends attended.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brandley and after signing the guest book were shown to the Relief Society room where lunch was served at attractively decorated tables by the Misses Colleen and Inez Christensen, Anita and Ladean McIbride, Geraldine Court and Laila Melchin.

Receiving with the bridal couple were Mrs. Myrtle Williams, Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, the Misses Elizabeth Brandley, June Anderson, and Barbara Nalder, bridesmaids, and Mr. Bert Hall who supported the groom.

The bride was lovely in a gown of heavy white satin, fashioned on princess lines with very full skirt and cowl neckline, with lace insertions. Her beautiful veil was floor length and she carried a bouquet of red roses. The bridesmaids chose aqua, pale pink and rose and each carried colonial bouquets.

Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Anderson were both in suits of grey and blue with carnation corsages.

Springtime motifs were carried out beautifully in the decorating, and maypoles, pussy willows, butterflies flowers etc. making the rooms very attractive even to the small gaily colored maypoles on the luncheon tables. The beautiful three-tiered wedding cake decorated by Mrs. Fern Spackman, centred the brides table.

The many lovely gifts were in charge of the Misses Gene Garner Joyce Phillips and Lois Fairbanks. Mrs. LaPrell McNeely took charge of the guest book.

For the short program which was presented Melvin T. EMERGENCIES AND ELECTIONS

Every whisper heard backstage in Ottawa suggests that there is a possibility that provincial elections may occur in five provinces across Canada during the next twelve months and that a general election may be in the making either this fall or early summer of next year, with the result that the political air is now what may be termed over-charged with political rumors to such an extent that the man in the street can easily be confused unless he is told what is really being talked about in well-informed circles along Parliament Hill.

It can be reported that the general election machinery is definitely being put into shape so that an appeal will be possible within three months after all the current amendments to the Dominion Election Act are passed in this session. In other words, the mechanics for calling a nationwide vote should be ready before long. However, these are only the mechanics, the machinery, and the man in the street must be told bluntly that the recurring rumors suggesting a vote this year are by no means supported by veteran observers on Parliament Hill in face of all stories.

The government says political observers in this capital is not likely to call an election on the "hot" freight rate issue. It is true that the government has received support by a comfortable majority, of its policies on the freight rates issue but it is also true that resentment against the increased rates is known to be far from dead. Controls and prices are "hot" issues right now so that an appeal during this year is not likely to be provoked while excited feelings exist on the question, with the expectation that these will exist for some time yet. When a new Liberal leader is chosen in August this year at the national convention in Ottawa it is more than likely that he may want some time before leading his party into an appeal to the people campaign. There are several other important angles which now suggest delay in the calling of a general election this year.

However, with less publicity than it deserves, the greatest likely cause for a delay in calling a vote is the tense international situation which appears to be more critical upon observation "inside" Ottawa than when viewed by the man on the street elsewhere across this country. If the present growing crisis in Europe will reach an emergency state or climax, it is quite unlikely that a general election would occur in 1948 or even 1949 during the early months in particular. This is predicted by veteran observers on Parliament Hill where the European situation is considered as grave and momentarily charged with explosive possibilities more than generally realized.

Evidently it's a fool's paradise to guess or speculate about elections being called at any time in 1948 unless all the above mentioned considerations are taken into account, even if five of the provincial governments should be preparing for tests of public opinion this year or early in 1949.

Their position, it must be said with strong emphasis, is far different than that of the government in Ottawa where the shadows of a deepening crisis overseas are casting serious reflections which may wipe out all thoughts of domestic politics during a crisis or emergency on the international scene.

JUDGEMENT AND CONTROLS

In view of a judgement holding invalid the powers exercised by the government in certain respects under the Emergency "Transitional Powers" Act, the Government has been asked in the House of Commons if an appeal is being taken against this judgement and what effects this judgement will have on existing controls. In reply, the Minister of Justice, Rt. Hon. J. L. Halsey, has revealed that an appeal is being taken against this judgement. "I would say that so far as I can ascertain the judgement has no effect on existing controls that derive their validity from this Act," said Mr. Halsey pointing out that the validity of the Act itself was affirmed by the judgement. "The authority of the government in council to pass a certain order in council appropriating property was denied in the judgement of Mr. Justice Williams. But I am not aware of any prejudicial effect upon any other controls." Obviously the effect of the judgement, in the opinion of the Minister of Justice is not to unsettle existing controls in Canada.

WAR MEDALS

It is understood here that veterans of World War 2 may not get their complete set of campaign medals and stars for sometime possibly not before 1949, due to the heavy task involved in making the huge number and the fact that the authorities prefer to be able to deliver all rather than in "installments" to some and not to others. The Royal Canadian Mint here is operating with full speed ahead in making these war medals and stars since all the dies have been received from Britain now.

NO REQUESTS

"The United States Government has made no request that the Royal Canadian Air Force should be expanded and it is almost inconceivable that such a request should be made", defence Minister Claxton told Parliament when he was asked by an MP "if any representations" had been made.

SAID IN THE CAPITAL

"The struggle today in many lands, and indeed it has become a world struggle against the ageing one between freedom and tyranny, between democracy and totalitarianism", Premier King told the House of Commons here in emphatic tones. "This may well be the last annual meeting prior to a general election" forecast R.A. Bell, national director of the Progressive-Conservative Party at a meeting in this capital of party followers.

"If we want peace, we must prepare for war" warned the British High Commissioner to Canada, Sir Alexander Clatterbuck during an address here.

"Not being a scientist I am not able to express an opinion on the food values of butter substitutes", remarked Agriculture Minister Gardiner discussing dairy matters at a meeting.

"Faith in the United Nations Organization is the best way of getting away from the current fear of another world war", Maj-Gen E.L. M. Burns declared here.

"We must not confuse this danger of Russian aggression by calling it a political philosophy", said Lt. Col. Morrell, VC MP, emphasizing here that there was real danger of a 3rd World War.

WEEKLY WIND-UP

Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader in the Upper Chamber has stated the legal view on oleomargarine in the light of the Geneva Agreement emphasizing that it was that Canada was not obliged by the Agreement to lift the ban.

A combine fire test has been made in the famous Parliamentary Library here with flames and all to see if the fire-fighting equipment and precautions can stand a fire, with success being reported for the new sprinkler device. In the 1916 fire of Parliament only the iron doors at its entrance saved the Library.

The government here is studying closely health insurance legislation which if enacted would affect the daily lives of Canadians as never before, providing a much talked about protection.

It is learned on Parliament Hill that the railways may suffer very little loss of business on account of the freight rate increase to trucks and ships though it has been rumored that shippers may turn these methods of transportation to a large extent where possible to save on shipping.

Canada's last link with the French "Vichy" regime was broken when Rene Ristelhuber, who was formerly the French Vichy Ambassador here, departed. He had remained in Canada after the Government of France changed and at one time was the only Vichy representative located anywhere in the British Empire, particularly during the exciting days of the war.

The teacher wrote on the black board, "I don't had no fun all summer."

Then she asked a youngster in the front row: "Henry, what should I do to correct that?"

Nebbe—get a boy-friend?" he suggested helpfully.

The teacher had forbidden the eating of candy in school. One day she became suspicious of a lump in Betty's cheek.

"Betty, are you eating candy?" she asked.

"No teacher," replies Betty, "I'm just soaking a prune to eat at recess."

My Week

by R. J. Denchman

Professor Harold J. Laski, once chairman of the British Labor Party Executive, who has been visiting recently in the United States comes out with some lurid pictures of war fever in that country, one of the most peaceful nations in the world.

Continental Europe was in dreadful difficulties. The devastation of the recent war had been greater than that of any other war in human history. There was fear of further conflict, fear too that Europe would collapse and Communist Russia would march clear through to the Atlantic.

America was aroused, the Marshall Plan was proposed. The idea was to pour money, which meant food and raw materials, into Western Europe in order to get the wheels of industry turning once more so that hope might come to the nations which had borne the real cost of the war, its misery and its bloodshed. Some time before that there was talk of a loan to Russia. It didn't go through. Russia could have accepted the Marshall Plan and been a part of it. It was in fact entitled to it. Russia, however, declared her opposition to this plan. Why should Russia object to aid being given to the other countries of Europe?

There is only one reason. Russia would profit by the breakdown of ordered government in Western Europe. It would leave her in supreme command of the situation. The return of prosperous conditions to Western Europe might hurt Russia. The news might leak into Russia that Western Europe, under capitalism with American aid, was doing fairly well. That is the last thing Russia wanted.

I have said the United States is the most peaceful country in the world. It has now awakened to the fact that in the past it has been too peaceful. It stayed out of World War 1 until it was forced to get into it and stayed out of World War 2 until attack upon Pearl Harbor, a slap in the face which no nation could accept. I doubt if there is a single nation in the world more anxious for peace more determined to avoid war than the United States.

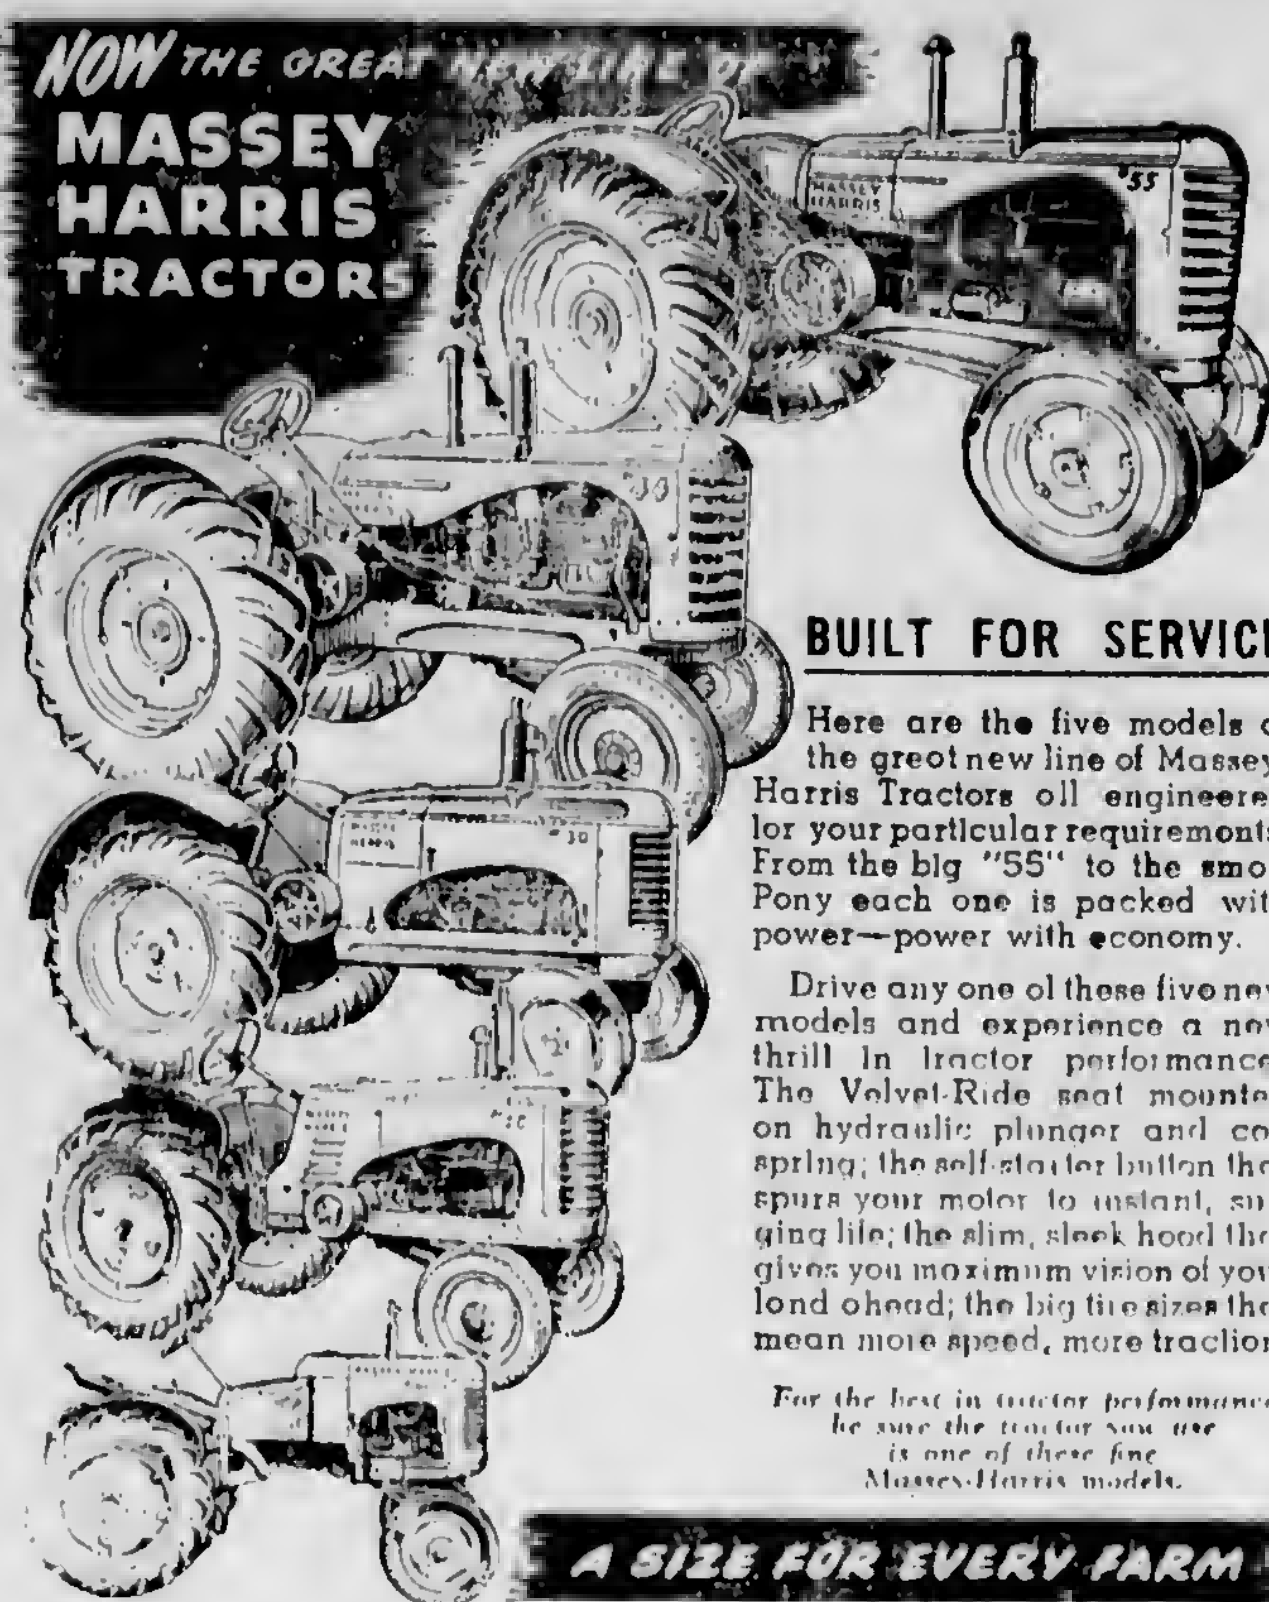

The United States, however, has learned though Laski has not, that war cannot be avoided by making up your mind that you are not going to fight. It cannot be avoided by refusing to recognize the signs of coming war. The United States watched Japan smash through China and establish the puppet nation of Manchukuo. With the resources gained in that conflict Japan threw herself against the United States. It watched Mussolini as he carried into effect an unprovoked war on Abyssinia. It is getting a bit sick of that sort of thing and by its conduct it is now emphasizing the fact that there is a limit to the Western march of Communism. The United States no longer intends to close its eyes to the realities of life but war will not be made by the United States, war if it comes will be made by Russia.

I have hopes that Russia will avoid it. I think it may. We have the authority of Mr. Laski that it will. Here is one paragraph.

"It comes as a surprise to most Americans to be told that Russia neither wants war nor is in a position to wage it. It is even more surprising to be told that most Europeans believe a settlement is possible and as urgently desired by Russia as by the common people everywhere."

Well and good—so far as it goes. Every sane nation in the world would welcome some sign or symbol of the possibility of co-operative action between Russia and the rest of the continent of Europe. Can Mr. Laski see a sign, one single little thing that would indicate that this is possible. Perhaps we should allow something for Russian brusqueness and intransigence. The United States has been very patient. It tolerated Emperor William. It stood for Hitler. The thoughtful people of America probably recognize now, that, in the past, they waited too long. It may be that Russia doesn't want war but it men who want freedom can act and will act in a way which makes war more costly than anything else which could possibly develop then perhaps peace will come. The simple proof that peace will be more profitable than war, especially wars of despots, would be a salutary lesson to rulers who harbor the idea that world conquest is an easy road to fame. By the way will Mr. Laski tell us when any democracy has voluntarily started a war of conquest.

WEEKLY LETTER
CRESTED WHEATGRASS
PASTURE

At the present time one of the most important characteristics of crested wheatgrass its very early development, is showing up. This early development is important for a number of reasons. In the first place it enables stock to get out on green pasture two to three weeks before native range is ready for grazing. Secondly, cattle tend to concentrate on the areas of crested wheatgrass thus protecting the adjoining native range. From the stand point of overgrazing the last point is probably the most important. It has been found that much damage to native pastures occurs in the early spring when the young grass plants are easily injured by grazing or trampling.

The ability to start growth very early in the spring is only one of a number of advantages possessed by crested wheatgrass. It is well known for its drought resistance. In addition, the grass will green up rapidly after summer or fall rains and often provides good pasture when native ranges are brown and dry.

Crested wheatgrass may be used for year round pasture, if necessary and good gains may be expected.
However, it finds its greatest use fulness as an early spring or late fall pasture or as a dependable hay crop in the drier sections of the province.
